Allison House Students Accommodation is situated in the large mining town of Broken Hill which is close to the border between New South Wales and South Australia, 500 km north-east of Adelaide.

The hostel was established in 1964 to provide accommodation for isolated children to attend any of the 9 different primary and secondary schools in Broken Hill.

The co-educational accommodation is dormitory style in 2 separate wings, each with shared ablution facilities.

Allison House has an extensive reference library and a fully equipped computer room for the benefit of the students. Study desks are provided in students' rooms.

A common TV/Video room is available, and outdoor recreation activities include table-tennis, pool table, cricket and basketball.
