Loyola House, an independent weekly boarding hostel for boys in Years 7-12, is located in the large regional town of Wagga Wagga approx 450km south-west of Sydney.

The students come from many areas and have a choice of attending 7 High Schools and a TAFE College. The hostel is ideally located within walking distance to some schools, town library, sporting facilities and the main shopping area of Wagga Wagga.

Loyola House is comprised of two buildings with air-conditioning and heating. The accommodation block which can house up to 32 boys contains 14 bedrooms, six 3-bed rooms and seven 2-bed rooms, and bathroom facilities. The second building contains the kitchen, dining-room, recreation room, basement (pool table and weights), and study room (computer facilities and resources).

During the course of a day the boys attend their particular school, play sport, study music, enjoy recreational activities, attend supervised study at night, and eat all meals together.
