Coolgardie Christian Aboriginal Parent-directed School is situated in the mining town of Coolgardie some 560 km east of Perth.

The hostel was established in 1981 in a heritage-listed building which was formerly a Convent for the Sisters of Mercy. It caters for primary school age indigenous students who come from various parts of Western Australia.

Accommodation at this 60-bed co-educational facility is in 2 large dormitories with locker rooms and bathroom facilities.

Live-in carers provide for the students' daily needs and keep in close contact with their families. Extra rooms are made available to accommodate family members who wish to spend time with their children. This option, together with the high-quality pastoral care given by the staff, has attracted many more applications than can be accepted.

Students attend the CAPS school located opposite, and are able to return to the hostel for lunch.
