Harvey Agricultural College is situated on a 950-hectare property on the banks of the Harvey River, approx 150 km south of Perth.

The College is a co-educational boarding facility with a capacity of 90 students who are accommodated in single room style cubicles. A large, fully-equipped catering area staffed by qualified personnel supplies daily meals.

Programs offered by the College include a general stream and a trade stream, together with viticulture and forestry courses. Students are able to obtain secondary graduation in all streams and also obtain the Western Australia Certificate in Education which allows entry into Curtin University's agricultural, horticultural and viticultural courses.

Students spend approximately half of their time in the classroom, and these studies are integrated with practical work on the farm. Students also spend time studying Wood and Metal work, and Building and Mechanics in well-equipped industrial style workshops.

Recreation and sporting facilities, both indoor and outdoor, are available to the students.

Harvey Agricultural College is a campus of the Western Australian College of Agriculture.
